1. Marks-Hamilton has made several attempts to talk to E.H. Town Planner Gary Goeschel - he was always unavailable so Stephen talked to Mr. Goeschel's secretary. She told Stephen that they were more concerned about building new structures in the town. Stephen went on the web site and found a generic form for Generic Roads Brochure - There were two forms - Steve is going to read and compare both of them. He just wants to find closure to this situation.

Huane talked with Julie ^{from} ~~from~~ State Historic Preservation office. They are in favor of doing an archaeological survey of the Samuel Smith property on Plants Dam Road.

Alvin Sher and Bill Sheen are ready to go forth with the Rail Road Bridge "Public Art" project. They are waiting for two pieces of Rail Road ties. Waterford is ready to move ahead.

An old Tomb Stone was found in the Corn Crib at the Tinker House. The name on it was Hannah and she was married to Enickel hord. They are also going to salvage beams and stones from the fireplace from the Tinker House.

A letter was sent from Ruane Lange to Sue Ellen Perry who purchased 441 Boston Post Rd. about the value of owning an historic home.

Certificate of Appropriateness for the Thomas Lee House to put up a beam. It had to approve concept of replacing a beam at Lee House - motion by B. Hokby - second by M. Christensen - passed.

E.H. House inventory - need someone to go through Black Book to comment on old houses - B. Hokby took book Grant Resources "Packet" - nothing done.

Budget submitted to Town for Commission in the amount of $250.00

501(C)(3) needed for Samuel Smith
on Plants Dam Rd.

E.h. Mills - There were 3,000 mills in the state of Ct - letters were sent out to people in E.h. concerning old mills - only one man from Old Lyme responded. It was about the Bradbury mill in Old Lyme on Gill Lane.

Public Act 13-181 - allows towns different commissions governing old Houses and historic properties other than Historic Properties Commission.

Luane took down the quilt, made by E.h. women, that was hanging in the Lee House. She wants to have it cleaned and preserved and hung either in the library, Senior Center or E.h.
Town Hall. It is owned by the Historical Society - Mark Christensen noted that

Head of the River Cemetery is being vandalized.
